

Range 9

STORM MOUNTAIN, INC.
Training Division

Range 9, the “Reactionary Range” was conceived and developed by our founder, Rod Ryan, a former Military Operator, Police SWAT Officer and Instructor.

Precision targets and programming makes the Reactionary Range a fundamental training choice for professionals who require competence, speed, and accuracy in close quarter scenarios. If you require rapid and accurate shooting skills, then our Reactionary Range is custom made for you.

The SMTC Reactionary Range develops the critical skills that every shooter requires – the ability to rapidly acquire and engage adversaries in close quarters. It’s fundamental to survival and success, and is able to support fast target discrimination.

There is no faster or better way to gain these lightning-fast reactionary shooting skills and instincts then on SMTC’s new, state-of-the-art Reactionary Range. The Reactionary Range is not as much about instruction as it is developing muscle memory and the subconscious auto-thinking through methodical repetition. There are three lanes, each with 4 targets at seven to 20 yards that are pneumatically operated by one of our expert staff. There are nine primary courses of fire that are all designed to push and stretch the shooter's abilities.

Throughout the courses of fire, 8" steel targets are only exposed for .5 to 1.75 of a second. That's highly challenging considering the average "precision shooter's" reaction time to hit a target from a security holster is about 1.5 seconds.

This type of dense repetition develops exceptional reactionary shooters as they negotiate the partial targets that are moving quickly. Shooters are able to measurably increase their confidence and success in rapid and accurate (and discretionary) firing scenarios.

This system requires a target controller.

- Pneumatic manually controlled reactionary range.
- 3 bays of 4 pneumatic head plate mechanisms.
- Handguns, shotguns and SMGs.
